WATKINS HISTORY

(The following was taken from the "History of Fulton County," written around 1920.)

James H. and Nancy (Kimmel) Watkins located in Swan Creek Township, Fulton County, about 1863. They cleared a farm, and a few years later, bought a timber tract in York Twp.

About 1888 K.K. Watkins and family spent four years in Kane County, IL. Here he worked as a broom maker, as well as working on farms.

When he returned to Fulton county, he rented land from 1892 till 1910, when he bought sixty acres where he has since lived. Mr. Watkins is a republican, and he is a justice of the peace. He has been school director and township trustee. He belongs to Berry Grange at Ai.

(We believe the property mentioned is land now crossed by the Ohio Turnpike, at County Road 5-2. The old house still stands, but is in poor condition. The barn is still used by the present owner (Bob Fauble, deceased as of 1996) and has been kept in fairly good condition. A power line to serve a new steel plant is being built across this land and the fate of the buildings is unknown.)

As of early 1996 the barn was moved about a quarter of a mile to the corner of CR 5-2 and Road K, property owned by the Fauble family. The house still stands.
